Officer Galloway's workshops feature more than 120 visual aids. As part of the workshop, Officer Galloway will conduct a community scan, which involves going to convenience stores and other retail locations to keep your knowledge of your local drug culture up-to-date.

Understand Drug Trends in Your Community

Officer Jermaine Galloway of Tall Cop Says Stop always says, "You can't stop what you don't know." That's why he conducts community scans in cities and towns across the United States.

When Officer Galloway visits a particular community, he will often go around to different local stores in that area to get a sense of its drug culture. For example, he may check out:

- * Bars and other alcohol-based locations
- * Shopping Malls

Don't Miss This Opportunity

This is a wonderful opportunity to learn more about what you don't know when it comes to alcohol and drugs. You could not ask for a more relevant topic. What better way can you offer your staff an opportunity for professional development.
